Stallholders Information

1. What happens if it rains?

It is the policy of the market to be open on market days irrespective of weather conditions. The majority of our stalls are under cover. The possibility always exists that the rain will lift and the sun will come out, resulting in a good market day. The market will only be closed once it is evident that there are no longer customers in the market because of persistent rain.

2. Are dogs allowed at the market?

Dogs are allowed in the market on a leash and under the control of their owners. Should the dog in any way damage any of the stallholders products in the market, the owner of the dog will be held liable for the costs involved for replacing or restoring the products. Should the dog relieve itself in the market, the responsibility rests with the owner to remove, and dispose of the deposit.

3. How does the payment system work in the market?

Each stallholder is responsible for his own payment system whether cash or card machine. Access to data for card machines is the stallholder's own responsibility. No wi-fi connection is provided.

4. Products

a) What is the market looking for when selecting products?

seeks quality self crafted products. Preference will be given to products made from organic and natural ingredients and materials. Consideration is given to the growing, processing and manufacture of the products as well as the packaging used. Mass produced goods made of plastic or synthetic materials are not accepted for sale in the market.

b) How are products selected?

All applications from prospective stallholders are submitted to the OuSkool restaurant management for consideration. If the products meet the criteria the applicant may be invited to present their products to management for further discussion.

c) What type of products are acceptable for consideration?

- Crops grown locally preferably organically without the use of chemical fertilizers and pesticides
- Animal products preferably locally sources or processed
- Deli foods that are self produced or prepared at the market
- Self crafted products including jewellery, clothing, accessories, décor, homeware, ceramics, pottery, art, photography, sculpture, curios, collectables, crafts in wood, leather, glass, paper, metal, children's toys & activities, health & wellness products
- While the focus of the market is on self crafted products, we may consider resold crafts and foodstuffs, depending on the relationship between the producer and the reseller, materials and ingredients used and the methods of production.
