OUR GOLF COURSE / ONS GHOLFBAAN

Near to nature / Naby die natuur

Well groomed by Welcome

GOLF GAME TIPS / GHOLFWENKE

Short Game Shot.

Today's top touring pros are incredibly skilled around the greens. It doesn't matter if they find their ball buried in deep rough, stuck behind a tree, or at the bottom of a deep bunker - they find a way to get up and down.

So...how do they do it?

Top tour pros have developed an arsenal of different shots to help them adapt to different situations on the course, and by selecting the right shot at the right time they can make difficult shots seem like a piece of cake.

One of the shots that many of today's top players rely on around the greens is a basic chip-and-run. While this simple shot is easy to learn, it's amazing how many of my playing partners don't do it properly.

Here's how to play a chip and run like a pro:

Choose the right club. For most players a chip and run shot is best executed with a mid-iron like a 6, 7, or 8 but you can experiment with other clubs in your bag as well. Just keep in mind the higher the loft the more the ball will carry and the less it will roll.

Tilt it up on the toe. To position your club properly for a good chip and run shot you want to tilt it up on its toe, and also address the ball toward the toe of the club. This will help you establish the right body position for the shot and make it harder to use your wrists during the swing (which you don't want to do).

Hit it like a putt. Once you've positioned your club properly you'll want to make a smooth pendulum stroke with your shoulders - just like hitting a putt! The extra loft on the club will pop the ball up the air and then it will land and roll out softly to the target.

It doesn't take much practice to master this simple shot, and once you do you'll find it much easier to get up and down in many different situations.
